29. Resolutions –

Resolution #1 (original)

Whereas the disclosure in March 2013 of Library and Archive Canada's new Code of Conduct (<http://www.scribd.com/doc/130187655/LAC-Code-of-Conduct-Values-and-Ethics>) revealed that it includes such strict measures as to have the combined effect of stopping Library and Archives Canada professionals from communicating about their work and their research with the public, particularly when their work may be seen to contravene the government's political agenda or embarrass the government;

And, Whereas the new Code of Conduct reminds professionals and academic experts at Library and Archives Canada (LAC) that "public confidence can easily be damaged by remarks that embarrass, criticize or otherwise comment on the actions of the Government" (page 11) and its elected officials (page 9);

And, Whereas the Code identifies speaking engagements (at conferences, for example) as "high-risk activities" for LAC, subject to approval from above (page 17) by imposing strict conditions on accepting invitations to attend a conference off-duty -- conditions including subject matter outside the activities of Library and Archives or its mandate, the employee not speaking as an employee of LAC, and the inviting third party not being a "potential collaborator" of LAC, even when the employee is invited to speak or simply to be a guest at a conference, personally (off-duty) and not through LAC – such that he or she must obtain authorization from a manager who has "documented confirmation" that the activity does not present "risks to LAC";

And, Whereas these conditions contradict not only LAC's mandate, but also the very principles of public access to information as expressed by the Access to Information Act – principles that should be upheld regardless of potential embarrassment to the government of the day – for example in Section 2 of the Act, "that government information should be available to the public, that necessary exceptions to the right of access should be limited and specific";

And, Whereas LAC experts and professionals have built our national library and archives for over a century through their research and academic work – which includes, inevitably and as with any field of scientific research, speaking with the public and with their peers, for the advancement of knowledge and the understanding of our history;

And, Whereas the LAC mandate assigns it responsibility for preserving Canada's documentary heritage, facilitated through cooperation among communities involved in acquisition, preservation and diffusion of knowledge, which also demands that its experts be allowed to speak publicly;

And, Whereas conditions and requirements of LAC's Code of Conduct appear similar to controversial policies recently established in other departments and federal institutions wherein scientists and government experts are required to obtain authorization before communicating with the media or the public (including on subjects within their field of expertise) and which policies are the subject of other complaints currently under investigation by the Information Commissioner of Canada;

Resolved that, in order to preserve the public's right to access expert knowledge as guaranteed by the Access to Information Act, APLA request the Information Commissioner of Canada to include Library and Archives Canada among agencies to be investigated for policies and actions that restrict government scientists from communicating with the media and with Canadians.

Originally submitted by: Peter Glenister who was absent/Seconded by: Lloyd Melanson who was present. Mark Truitt moved approval with amendments. Beth Maddigan seconded. Motion carried with 2 abstentions.

Resolution #1 (as amended)-

Whereas Library and Archives Canada's new Code of Conduct (<http://www.scribd.com/doc/130187655/LAC-Code-of-Conduct-Values-and-Ethics>) includes measures which have the effect of stopping Library and Archives Canada professionals from communicating about their work and their research with the public;

And, Whereas the LAC mandate assigns it responsibility for preserving Canada's documentary heritage, facilitated through cooperation among communities involved in acquisition, preservation and diffusion of knowledge, which also demands that its experts be allowed to speak publicly,

Resolved that, in order to preserve the public's right to access expert knowledge as guaranteed by the Access to Information Act, APLA request the Information Commissioner of Canada to include Library and Archives Canada among agencies to be investigated for policies and actions that restrict government scientists from communicating with the media and with Canadians.

Résolution #1

Attendu que le nouveau Code de conduite de Bibliothèque et Archives Canada (BAC) contient des mesures qui empêchent les employés de Bibliothèque et Archives Canada de communiquer avec le grand public au sujet de leur travail et de leur recherche;

Et attendu que le mandat de BAC lui confère la responsabilité de préserver l'héritage documentaire du pays, ce qui est facilité par la coopération avec les communautés aussi impliquées dans l'acquisition, la conservation et la diffusion du savoir, ce qui nécessite que ses experts et expertes soient autorisés à s'exprimer publiquement;

Qu'il soit résolu, afin de défendre le droit du public d'accéder aux services de professionnels de l'information tel que garanti par la Loi sur l'accès à l'information, que l'APLA demande à la Commissaire à l'information du Canada d'inclure Bibliothèque et Archives Canada parmi les agences à soumettre aux enquêtes concernant les politiques et actions qui limitent les scientifiques gouvernementaux de communiquer avec les médias et les Canadiens et Canadiennes.

Resolution #2

Whereas current technology has facilitated the business of the association being conducted throughout the year; and

Whereas written reports are being submitted and distributed in advance of the OGM;

Moved by Elaine MacLean/Seconded by Jennifer Richard. Motion carried – 3 opposed; 1 abstention.

Résolution #2

Attendu que les nouvelles technologies ont facilité le travail de l'association à ce qu'il soit mené tout au long de l'année; et
